LAW	500TUT	Legal Profession	Students will develop an understanding of the skills and professional responsibility of being an attorney, counselor at law and legal advocate. Students will learn skills to perform well in the Law School curriculum. You will also learn about issues facing law students and attorneys as they try to meet their obligation to "maintain the highest standards of ethical conduct." Topics will include ethical obligations and stressors facing lawyers, and mentoring. Due to guest presentations, attendance is required at all sessions to successfully complete this course. While the course will be graded S/U, students who do not regularly attend will not pass the course and will have to repeat it in their second year of Law School.	0	Macdonald,William
LAW	501LEC	Civil Procedure	Civil (that is, non-criminal) lawsuits proceed according to rules and practices tied to a range of values and principles, which sometimes conflict with one another. These rules, practices, and principles are deeply implicated in American legal life beyond the courtroom. This course introduces students to the basic structure of the civil lawsuit. We take the litigants' perspective to cover how people start, pursue, and try to end lawsuits. We take the courts' perspective to see how judges manage litigation. And we take a systemic perspective to understand how the authority of courts is constructed, constrained, and distributed in our dispersed system of adjudication. Throughout the course, we track how competing values play out in seemingly neutral choices about adjudicative process. Through class discussion and application problems, students practice placing themselves in the position of the attorneys they will become, and facing the legal and the ethical dilemmas that are key to legal work.	4	Bartholomew,Christine P
LAW	503LEC	Contracts	The general scope and purpose of the legal protection accorded contracts: interpretation, formation, warranties, covenants, conditions, breach and remedies. Emphasis will be placed on the way that these scraps of doctrine get translated into, or avoided by, formal contract documents used in contemporary commercial practice. This course is for first year students only.	4	Dimick,Matthew; Brown,S.Todd
LAW	505LEC	Criminal Law	Introduction to substantive criminal law, emphasizing the purposes, sources and limits of criminal law, the elements of criminal conduct, criminal responsibility, justification and excuse, criminal combinations, and the application of general principles to specific crimes. Introduction to selected aspects of the criminal justice system essential to an understanding of substantive criminal law.	4	Binder,Guyora; Chiesa,Luis
LAW	509LEC	Torts	A basic introduction to the tort law system, covering such topics as causation in fact, negligence, proximate cause, emotional harm, comparative fault, assumption of risk, intentional harms, and strict liability. Attention will be given to the role of tort law in its broader social context and to proposals for "reform" of the tort law system. This course is for first year students only.	4	Finley,Lucinda M

LAW	515LEC	Legal Analys, Writing & Res I		4	Various
			The ultimate goal of this course is to prepare students to address complex legal issues as they arise in actual practice. This course will prepare students by focusing on legal issues that commonly arise in the context of civil litigation. Using one civil case file, students explore all phases of civil litigation, from intake through appeal. Students will conduct legal research, analyze legal problems and authorities, draft a variety of legal documents, complete distinct legal skill exercises, and write an appellate brief. This course will help students to develop sophisticated legal research skills, refine their legal analysis, and hone their legal writing. It will also reinforce fundamental civil procedure and legal practice concepts. Students will learn how to draft pleadings, develop an understanding of how discovery tools are used to obtain evidence to support your claim or defense, draft a pretrial motion brief, and develop an understanding of essential appellate concepts such as finality, preservation, and interlocutory appeal. By the end of this course, students will be more adept at conceptualizing and analyzing legal issues, have a more sophisticated understanding of legal elements, rules of law, statutory analysis, and case law synthesis, and will have applied these concepts to complex legal problems in a practical setting.
LAW	517LEC	Advanced LAWR		3	Jacek,Brian Joseph
			This course will help students develop the legal skills necessary to perform as successful student judicial externs. Assignments will require students to further develop and refine their research, writing, and analytical skills. Students will learn how to prepare bench memoranda, judicial opinions, and other documents typically produced by judicial law clerks. We will examine the function and role of judicial clerks, the relationship between law clerks and judges, and the ethical obligations governing judges and their clerks. Students taking this course will gain a deeper understanding of trial and appellate court practice and become more adept at addressing complex legal questions. Because students will be simultaneously serving as judicial externs, ample time will be allotted for questions, discussion, and the exchange of workplace experiences.

LAW	545LEC	Environmental Law	An overview of the laws aimed at managing and preserving natural resources and biodiversity through a variety of private, regulatory, informational, and public land-management mechanisms. We will examine statutes, regulations, and other mechanisms governing the management of the federal lands and their resources. We will consider the historical, political, and ecological influences on the law and management of these resources. This course will introduce the agencies with jurisdiction over the components of the federal estate and environmental regulation. Through this lens, you will strengthen your understanding of administrative law, constitutional law, and statutory interpretation. The course also covers regulation of natural resources "including land, water, and biodiversity" on state, tribal, and private land.	3	Civiletto,Christen Elizabeth
LAW	564LEC	Legal Ethics and Pro Respon	This course examines the ethical standards and legal obligations of lawyers and the contextual factors that lead to ethical failures. We will discuss real life problems using the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct, the Restatement (Third) of the Law Governing Lawyers, statutes, case law, and ethics opinions that govern lawyer behavior and the lawyer's duties to the client, third parties, the courts and the public. This course will focus not just on learning the rules, but understanding and recognizing the circumstances in which lawyers violate the rules. An understanding of the rules accompanied by critical self-awareness helps the lawyer recognize pitfalls before they become serious and gives students the analytical tools they need to make good decisions. The course fulfills the 3-credit ethics requirement and must be taken in second year.	3	Milles,James G.
LAW	567LEC	Lawyers as Change Agents	This class examines the role of lawyers in achieving systemic change in a local community, using case studies from Buffalo with a focus on issues of equality and environmental justice. How are public policy changes won? How do lawyers make a systemic impact while working in a wide variety of settings, including private firms, non-profits, governments, and non-legal careers? What aspects of legal training and experience help or hinder lawyers as they aim to make a difference? What are successful tools for public policy advocacy? We'll meet with a diverse range of lawyers who are successful change agents. Students will learn research and advocacy skills such as writing policy briefs and working with media and elected officials, and they will do action research on local issues. We will invite the public to our final class, in which we'll present findings and recommendations. The class will meet in downtown Buffalo at 617 Main St., Suite 300.	3	Magavern,Samuel D

LAW	583LEC	Int'l Business Transaction	This course examines the legal aspects of doing business across national borders. Topics discussed include international sales transactions, international franchise and distribution agreements, international technology transfers, international trade regulations, foreign direct investment, and international dispute resolutions. In addition to introducing the laws and regulatory regimes affecting cross-border transactions, the course also aims at developing problem-solving skills that are most useful in international business transactions.	3	Mutua, Makau W.
LAW	604LEC	Sports Law	This course provides an overview of the primary issues and legal principles addressed in the practice of amateur and professional sports law. Both statutory and case law will be examined, with attention to the pragmatic effect upon the legal practitioner. Topics of discussion will include the impact of antitrust law and policy upon both amateur and professional sports associations, amateur sports eligibility issues, gender equity problems, the structure and governance of amateur and professional sports organizations, and labor relations in professional sports.	3	Drew, Helen A.
LAW	604SEM	Law and Public Education	This course will study the legal structure of the American school system and the role and constraints created by the process of judicial review. Students will learn how to apply statutes and regulations as required by law, and to implement school policies in accordance with law.	3	Swiatek, Jeffrey F
LAW	607LEC	Tech & Innovation Mgmt	The focus of this course will be on technology management and developing an Internet-based business or extension to an existing business. The course will integrate concepts from economics, organizational strategy, entrepreneur-ship, and Web design. Topics to be covered in the course include: aligning technology and strategy; models of diffusion and innovation; characteristics of information and digital goods, identifying potential Web-applications and information products for solving a problem and/or identifying a business opportunity; intellectual property rights; pricing issues related to information goods; developing a business plan for a venture capital proposal; launching the e-business; designing Web-based applications for usability; and strategies for successfully implementing systems. Case studies, lectures, guest speakers, and an integrated E-business project will be used to understand the complexities of the current business environment.	3	Sanders, George L.

LAW	608LEC	Federal Income Tax	An introduction to the basic principles of the federal personal income tax. This course will be taught through a series of in-class lectures, as well as an in-class review of hypothetical problems designed to encourage independent thought and critical analysis of the law and policy of federal income taxation. The course emphasizes a critical examination of the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and the Treasury Regulations (as well as other primary sources such as case law and IRS guidance) so that students may become proficient in the use of these basic tax tools. Topics analyzed will include history of the federal income tax, federal tax law authorities, federal tax procedure, the definition of gross income, exclusions and deductions from gross income, and tax rates. The course is designed to equip students to handle common personal income tax problems likely to arise in general practice.	3	Forman, Heidi L
LAW	610LEC	Criminal Pro: Investigation	This course, employing a lecture and Socratic format, examines the constitutional constraints on government investigation of crime imposed by the 4th, 5th and 6th Amendments.	3	Chiesa, Luis
LAW	612LEC	Constitutional Law 2	This upper-level survey course supplements Con Law I by taking a deeper, more methodical dive into the scope, content, and claimability of the Individual Rights guarantees protected by the U.S. Constitution. Who can claim these rights? Against whom? Subject to what limitations? With what remedies? What, if any, is the overarching logic that guides constitutional interpretation of individual rights protections by the U.S. Supreme Court? How has that logic evolved over the last 230 years? Are these logics, and the methodologies applied to implement them, up to the challenges of the 21st century, particularly in preserving and strengthening inclusive democratic self-governance? What, moreover, do these methodologies mean for rights-based work at the state and local levels? The course will concentrate on the individual rights and liberties protected by the Due Process Clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments, the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, and the First Amendment guarantees of freedom of speech.	3	Melish, Tara Jane
LAW	613LEC	Evidence	This course will examine and analyze the Rules of Evidence (Federal and New York State) which determine what facts and exhibits juries and judges may consider in deciding the outcomes of criminal and civil cases. These are the "rules of the game" which trial lawyers must understand in order to know whether and when to object and how to respond effectively to objections raised by opposing counsel. Toward that end, we will dissect the rules in the context of relevant cases and factual scenarios with an eye toward achieving a practical, common sense understanding.	4	Bartholomew, Christine P

LAW	614LEC	Estate Planning	Planning for the financial security of the family and preservation of wealth. Federal and State laws relevant to dispositions of wealth during lifetime or at death and/or divorce, with New York emphasis: Intestate descent and distribution; the concept, formalities and anatomy of the will with drafting issues; the "trust" concept and use of various types of trusts; will substitutes; life insurance and powers of appointment; the durable power of attorney, health care declaration and the "living will" in New York. Form of transfer concepts, including split interests, joint tenancy, revocable and irrevocable gifts, with emphasis on marshalling our client's probate and non-probate estate to provide for the contingencies of living and effectively attend to the transitions at death or disability. Comparison of the property rights of the spouse, with analysis regarding marital deduction planning and the surviving spouse's right of election; considering the "community property" client; equitable distribution under NY's Domestic Relations Law. Special planning considerations: Practical planning overview of the 2001 Federal Tax Act's "phase-out/reanimation" of the federal estate tax, with gift tax, estate tax and generation skipping taxes considered. Business plans to preserve value and family succession to business interests, considering the cross purchase and the stock redemption agreement, red-flag problems in connection with carrying out family business planning. Practical insight regarding the use and structure of charitable gifts; meeting the cost of higher education; Elder law overview; retirement income tax planning; and that ultimate planning issue, VALUATION.	3	Schultz,Tammie D.
LAW	617LEC	Gratuitous Transfers	This course will cover various aspects of family wealth transmission and the attendant problems that can occur. Topics include trusts, wills, powers of appointment, intestacy, class gifts, restrictions on testamentary dispositions, will contests, the surviving spouse's elective share, and other administrative issues arising in wealth succession.	3	Forman,Heidi L
LAW	626LEC	NY Practice	A very practical course on the rules of civil procedure in New York based on the real-life experiences of a member of the local bar. The major portions of the Civil Practice Law and Rules and other practice statutes are covered in a series of interesting lectures. As a hands-on experience, the class will be divided into groups assigned to represent a party in a hypothetical personal injury/property damage lawsuit. The groups will prepare and serve pleadings and make appropriate preliminary motions, etc. Major subjects covered are jurisdiction, conditions precedent, statutes of limitation, venue, service, pleadings, parties, discovery, motion practice and special proceedings.	3	Kraengel,Elizabeth Ann

LAW	628SEM	Art Law	Everyone is captivated by stories of art market activities and Art Law is the study of what art lawyers do in the art market. It covers everything from the question of "What is Art?" to Holocaust-looted art and a banana duct-taped to the wall and sold as art. (At the Miami Art Basel Festival in 2019, a prankster took a $120,000 banana off the wall and ate it in front of the cameras.) We will look at Artist-dealer relationships, Sales "through Dealers, Private sales and Resales " Museums, Copyrights, Moral rights, Auctions, Theft, Forgery, Authenticity and other topics. Each week, we will read a section from ART LAW by Lerner, Bresler and Wierbicki and then a major case in Art Law or two on that subject. A three to four page paper (1300 words) is due in class every week on the case at hand and then we will discuss what you have written and what you thought about the decision. Class attendance is obviously important, however, there is no other work product, no long paper and no exam because the shorter papers add up to the 40-50 page requirement for a seminar paper. This class will be a lot of fun.	3	Redwood, Rebecca French
LAW	634LEC	Secured Transactions	This course will cover Article 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code, which governs security interests in commercial and consumer contexts. We will examine the formation, attachment, perfection and enforcement of security interests under state law and the manner in which federal bankruptcy law incorporates and alters the rights of secured parties. Special emphasis will be given to techniques of statutory analysis and problem solving.	3	Barone, Kenneth F
LAW	635SEM	The Magna Carta	This is a seminar on the history and meaning of Magna Carta, the thirteenth-century English charter commonly described as the origin of due process and Anglo-American constitutionalism more generally. We will begin with three weeks studying the text of the Magna Carta, focusing on its treatment of taxes, law and justice, and the church. We will then turn to a historical study of the causes of Magna Carta, including the character of king John and his treatment of the barons who revolted, the events that immediately preceded the charter's negotiation at Runnymede, and the political and legal ideas that underlay the its text. Lastly, we will conclude the seminar with three to four classes on later interpretations of Magna Carta. We will consider how it came to be associated with the idea of due process of law, the role it played in the American Revolution, and its effects on modern American law. Students will be graded on the basis of a seminar paper on any topic related to Magna Carta.	3	Steilen, Matthew James

LAW	638TUT	Trial Technique	The purpose of this course is to offer an opportunity to gain some experience in the actual trial of a lawsuit. Each student will engage in activities such as making an opening statement, conducting direct and cross examination of witnesses, and giving a closing argument. Both criminal and civil cases are used. The instructors in charge of each section are practicing attorneys or judges, who are also part time members of the faculty. The class sections meet for a minimum period of ten weeks. The eleventh session is a mock trial. Judges and trial attorneys from the area preside, law students and assistant DA's are the court assistants, high school and college students serve as jurors, and stenographers are available for most trials. The jurors hear the evidence, receive instructions from the judge, deliberate and return a verdict. Students in the course are responsible for selecting and preparing witnesses. Prerequisite or Corequisite: Evidence.	3	Various
LAW	641LEC	Insurance Law	The course will focus on the practical aspects of insurance law for the general practitioner, the business lawyer, the personal injury lawyer, and one desiring to practice insurance coverage law. The curriculum will cover the concepts of insurance, the purpose of insurance and the nature of the various risks, e.g. , fire, liability (comprehensive, auto, professional, environmental), property, no-fault and workers compensation. We will emphasize contemporary issues using the New York Insurance Law, selected insurance cases and exemplar insurance policies, as well as ethical issues facing insurance companies, insured and attorneys practicing in the field. The subject matter will analyze the rights, remedies and liability of the insured, insurers, agents and brokers, and third parties, and the relationship of insurance to contract and tort law. In the liability insurance field we will explore the duty to defend and indemnify and the scope of disclaimers.	3	Kohane,Dan

LAW	651TUT	Trial Advocacy	case with an eye toward participating as trial counsel in a national mock trial competition. This course picks up where basic Trial Technique leaves off. It is more in-depth and concentrated in its focus and time commitment. The students will organize and analyze a complicated fact pattern by focusing on the elements of proof, defenses and by developing a theme of the case. In each session, students will, under the guidance of the instructor, guest judges and trial lawyers, work on a different aspect of a selected case. In the process they will sharpen their skills in the mechanics of trial lawyering: how to ask proper questions on direct and cross examination, impeachment with a prior inconsistent statement, introduction and use of objections. The student performances in each aspect of the trial will be critiqued on the spot so that they can identify their weak points and improve upon them for the next session. In the trial competition, the students will try a case against top student trial lawyers from across the country. Competitions are either invitationals which involve trying both sides of a criminal or civil case at least twice, and up to 5 to 6 times depending on whether the team advances past the preliminary rounds. The competitions usually take 3 to 4 days. With the National Trial Competition and ATLA Competition, if the team wins the Regional, they advance to the Nationals and repeat the process. Actual trial judges and trial lawyers serve as judges and evaluators. Course schedule varies from semester to semester and ordinarily consists of frequent meetings during a 6-week period. The time commitment is generally 3 nights a week and Saturday or Sunday mornings with all sessions running about three hours. This course counts toward the maximum of 12 credits that a student is permitted to receive from independent studies, externships, and courses in other UB academic units. Note: Students enrolled in this course will receive 3 credits. Students may be eligible for an additional 3 credits if they advance from a Regional Competition to a National Competition during one semester or if they are selected to participate in two competitions in two semesters. In no event shall any student receive more than 6	3	Scharf, Jennifer R
LAW	654LEC	Business Associations	This course will introduce students to the basic business structures and organizational relationships. Building on these basics, students will learn to explore and weigh the implications of the structures available to clients as they form new businesses or embark on new business relationships. The course will include an introduction to legal concepts which arise throughout the life of a business organization, including fiduciary duty, agency, liability, management, and transactions. Students will be challenged, through case studies and real world examples, to develop recommendations and arguments for or against different business forms and approaches to corporate issues. Students who have taken Corporations cannot also take this course.	3	Mutua, Athena D.; Westbrook, David

LAW	665SEM	Regional Economic Development	The effects of public and private economic development initiatives are hotly debated. In the Buffalo area, at least, publicly funded economic development, especially large-scale infrastructural improvements, seem not to have worked very well. Recent scholarship has suggested why that is the case. However, there has not been much work directed toward understanding what makes public or private economic development initiatives successful, much less toward identifying less grand public economic development activities might contribute to that success. The study of economic development is a multifarious enterprise. This semester we will focus on residential development in any area, be it city or suburb. We will begin with what even after over 50 years is the baseline understanding of residential life: Jane Jacobs, The Death and Life of Great American Cities , and then move on to more recent ideas that are based on Jacobs' book. Students, working in groups, should expect to acquire detailed knowledge of a specific neighborhood in the area and to use that knowledge to develop a plan for improving the residential economy of that neighborhood.	3	Schlegel, John H

LAW	690LEC	Alternative Dispute Resolution	Alternative Dispute Resolution, which refers to the out-of-court resolution of disputes using a neutral third party, is a proven, cost-effective and time-efficient alternative to the traditional litigation process. The national and regional trend toward the use of ADR is gaining broad acceptance in both the business and legal communities, particularly through the use of mediation and arbitration. The course starts with an overview of the various forms of ADR, including negotiation, mediation, arbitration, neutral evaluation, mini-trials, and summary jury trials. Next, we explore the substantive law governing agreements to arbitrate, including the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), 9 U.S. C. §§ 1-16 and Article 75 of the N.Y. CPLR, as well as procedures for enforcement of awards in arbitration. Throughout the course, we will emphasize practical application, including counseling clients in determining whether and when to select ADR, drafting ADR agreements, negotiating skills and techniques, representing clients in ADR proceedings, selecting arbitrators or mediators, and conducting mediation and arbitration proceedings. Students will develop mediation advocacy skills that will have broad application to law practice.	3	Civiletto, Christen Elizabeth

LAW	691LEC	Pensn Employee Benefit	Pensions, health insurance, and other employee benefit plans are central features of the employment relationship in the United States. The legal regulation of these plans is both an independent area of legal specialization and a subject that overlaps many other fields of law, including corporate, labor, tax, trust, employment discrimination, and domestic relations law. The course will focus primarily on private pension and health plans. The main focus will be on various bodies of regulatory law, especially the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), as amended, and its case law. After providing an overview of the main types of pension and health plans, the course will look at rules governing coverage, vesting, funding, fiduciary standards, investment distribution, claims administration, and preemption of state law.	3	Wooten,James A.
LAW	695SEM	Land Use Planning	This course will focus on emerging issues in land use regulation and community planning, and provide a practical understanding of land use planning, utilizing examples taken from current development projects and community planning initiatives. Topics to be discussed include comprehensive planning, zoning and subdivision regulation, environmental review, eminent domain, growth management, zoning and discrimination, and zoning reform.	3	Murray,William M
LAW	697LEC	Intl Human Rights Law	This course critically examines the norms, actors and institutions that play a role in the protection of human rights. The course includes discussion of the conceptual and historical foundations of human rights; controversial topics in comparative human rights law, such as the death penalty, hate speech, the rights to health and education, and responses to terrorism; international, regional, and national mechanisms for the interpretation, implementation, and enforcement of human rights (particularly within the United Nations and regional systems of rights protection, including international complaints procedures, periodic reporting processes, monitoring and inquiry procedures, naming and shaming tactics, indicator and benchmarking methodologies, and other incentive-based tools designed to modify state and non-state actor behavior); and specialized doctrines of human rights interpretation and balancing where rights conflict. The course includes a moot court argument before the Inter-American Court of Human Rights.	3	Mutua,Makau W.

LAW	701SEM	Fed Court Practice Procedure	You've learned a great deal about what the law says, but after you graduate and enter the workforce, how do you use that information to practice law? This class will strive to bridge that gap, and to expose you to how law is practiced focusing on how that happens in the federal courts. We'll address topics that you probably haven't been exposed to, and will expand on some topics that you have worked with in other classes. This class will spend time addressing these practice (and practical) issues in both criminal and civil cases, and will look at timely and relevant issues in recent cases. We'll examine pleadings from real cases, and use them to apply the law. For example, how do you decide if a complaint actually satisfies Iqbal and Twombly? Should I move to dismiss under Rule 12? We'll take real complaints, go through them, and discuss potential motions to dismiss. In another context, what do you do after receiving a report and recommendation? Should you object? And to what? We'll work through a real case with real pleadings, and give you insight into this process " which applies to both civil and criminal cases. The course will be graded primarily through two written assignments " and as a seminar class, one of them is considered a significant writing assignment.	3	Eldridge,Sean Christopher
LAW	702LEC	Domestic Violence Law	Over the past 35 years, there have been significant changes in law and public policy and shifts in culture regarding domestic violence. This course focuses on legal issues (in theory and practice) with the understanding that they cannot be dissociated from policy considerations and outcomes as well as cultural norms. Guest speakers will supplement course materials to connect theory to practice. Students will be required to observe family and criminal domestic violence courts. There will be periodic graded written assignments and required court observations.	3	Olin,Judith Gail
LAW	715LEC	Health Policy in US	Introductory course that explores the U.S. public policymaking process and its impacts upon the determinants of the population's health status including environmental, socio-cultural, ethnic, demographic, economic, lifestyle, service access and other factors. The course provides an historical overview of benchmark developments in U.S. health care, highlighting significant influences that transformed the industry into its current form. With the incremental evolution of U.S. health policy as the context, the course discusses individual and societal values concerning health and the operation of the political system. Each step of the policymaking process highlights the roles of key players in the legislative, judiciary and executive branches of government. The course identifies and characterizes health care system stakeholders ranging from private citizens to powerful industry lobbying organizations and the means and methods used to influence the formulation, implementation and modification of health policy. The course concludes with a discussion of the characteristics and role of political competence in the U.S. policymaking process.	3	Kirk,Hilary

LAW	718LEC	Intro Hlth Care Organztn	This graduate level course introduces students to the historical development, structure, operation, and current and future directions of the major components of the American health care delivery and public health system. It examines the ways in which health care services are organized and delivered, the influences that impact health care public policy decisions, factors that determine priorities in financing health care services and the relationship of health care costs to measurable benefits. The course enables students to assess the role of different stakeholders in influencing health policy as well as the contributions of medical technology, research findings, and societal values to the evolving US health care delivery system.	3	Noyes,Ekaterina Ivanovna
LAW	722LEC	Mediation Theory & Prac	Mediation is becoming an extensively utilized dispute resolution tool as Federal and State Courts establish mediation referral programs and as clients are increasingly hiring private sector mediators to avoid costly court battles and to maximize results. It is vital that new lawyers are cognizant of what mediation is all about, whether they want to possibly make mediation part of their future law practices, or simply know enough to effectively advise and assist their clients at mediation sessions. This course examines mediation as a tool for resolving conflict, both in the legal and non-legal arenas. We will look at mediation from both a practical and theoretical perspective, drawing upon a variety of reading materials, speakers and videos. Topics we will cover include the nature and dynamics of conflict, negotiation theory and practice, and, in greatest depth, the mediation process itself. We will learn about the stages of mediation; the varied roles, styles, and orientations of mediators; mediators' communication skills and other tools used in mediating conflict; mediation ethics; the use of mediation in various contexts, including the court system; and the role of attorneys representing clients who participate in mediation. To bring mediation to life, students will participate in many mediation role-plays, communication and other hands-on exercises.	3	Sugarman,Steven
LAW	722SEM	Int Res Writing Sports Law	This course provides a unique opportunity for independent, intensive research and writing into current topics in sports law. Students will serve as editor(s) of the sports law blog, researching and writing weekly posts on contemporaneous sports law issues. Students will also be responsible for confirming the research of other blog contributors, and editing posts. Students will be required to participate in weekly editorial meetings and consult on an ongoing basis with the faculty editor and blog contributors. Students must have strong writing and organizational skills, display initiative and provide leadership. Permission of instructor required. Meeting times to be arranged.	3	Drew,Helen A.

LAW	723LEC	Commercial Transactions	This course will cover the law governing sales and leases of personal property with a focus on Article 2 of the Uniform Commercial Code and The United Nations Convention On The International Sale of Goods. We will examine the rights and obligations of buyers, sellers, lessors and lessees in sales and lease transactions using the problem-solving method. We will cover topics including, contract formation and interpretation, warranties, shipping and delivery terms and obligations risk of loss, transfer of title, and remedies for breach, among others.	3	Suttell,Lauren Ann
LAW	729LEC	Trademk & Unfair Competitn	Brands are big business. The Apple trademark for computers is valued at over $200 billion. This number doesn't include any of Apple's factories, employees, or its inventory of computers, tablets, and smartphones. It is simply the value that economists put on the "Apple" name. And Apple is not alone. Many of the world's most valuable companies owe that value to the reputation bound up in their particular name or corporate logo. Not surprisingly, with this much money at stake, law has stepped in to decide what is fair and what is not when it comes to the use of a business's trademark. This course provides an in-depth treatment of this body of law, including discussion of eligibility for trademark and trade dress protection, trademark and trade dress infringement, trademark dilution, misappropriation and unfair competition, and the right of publicity. The course also examines the role of trademark within the larger context of intellectual property law and policies, both domestic and international. No prior experience with intellectual property law is required.	3	Bartholomew,Mark
LAW	732LEC	Business Basics for Lawyers	Many law school courses assume that law students have an understanding of business and economy. Most students lack such an understanding. This course is designed to supply enough knowledge to turn that dubious assumption from false to true, but not to overwhelm anyone with too many of the details. The course begins with a general introduction to the American economy and its regulation as well as the economics and finance basic to any business. Thereafter, it will cover topics including business entities, banking, securities, taxation, insurance, real estate, accounting, employment, and bankruptcy. The course with finish with an examination of two specific markets, one local and the other international, designed to synthesize the introductory material with the individual topics covered. No math beyond addition and subtraction, percentages and ratios will be required.	3	Schlegel,John H

LAW	743LEC	Legislative Redistricting	This class presents the remarkable opportunity to evaluate the law surrounding "one person one vote" in real time, as the future of this fundamental civil right is decided in the Supreme Court and the statehouse. 2020 is a dicennial census year, which means that each state will be drawing legislative boundaries for state and federal offices. This class will begin with an historical survey of United States Supreme Court decisions interpreting the "one person one vote" principle after 1962's landmark decision in Baker v. Carr which found for the first time that Constitutional challenges to redistricting plans were justiciable rather than "political questions". We will discuss the 1965 Voting Rights Act and its effects on legislative boundary-making, and finish by discussing two "political gerrymandering" cases argued March 26, 2019 " Rucho v Common and Lamone v. Benisek which should be decided around the time of the course. We will then examine legislative redistricting in New York and the 2010 state Constitutional Amendments which created a 10 member Independent Redistricting Commission. We will conclude with an examination of the sophisticated computer software which allows for citizens to create legislative districts based on available census data.	3	Housh, Frank T
LAW	745LEC	US Legal Research & Writing	This course is required for all LL.M. students with non-US law degrees. It focuses on building legal research, analysis and writing skills. Students will become familiar with the US approach (common-law) to legal research and writing, with particular emphasis on NY State law, through exercises that include conducting legal research online and in the library, writing memoranda, and constructing oral arguments. Registration is by permission of the instructor.	2	Rowan, Katrin
LAW	746LEC	Patent Law	This course provides an introduction to the theory and practice of patent law. For many companies, the patents they hold are one of their most valuable and important assets. As such, both general and intellectual property law litigators and corporate lawyers benefit from familiarity with patent law concepts to assist their client. In this course, students will debate policy issues pertaining to patents and explore the use of the patent law system in spurring innovation. They will learn about the standards for assessing whether an invention is patentable and will develop an understanding of how patents are prosecuted and litigated through the federal administrative process and the federal courts. Students will also discuss strategies for dealing with infringement actions and validity challenges. In addition, students will develop an understanding of the role that patent law plays in the greater context of intellectual property law from both a domestic and international perspective. No scientific background or previous experience in intellectual property or patent law is required or necessary. This course is complementary to 883LEC, Introduction to Patent Practice, which focuses in more detail on the practicalities of claim drafting and patent prosecution.	3	Semet, Amy Elizabeth

LAW	762SEM	Adv Topics in Law & Society	This seminar introduces students to cutting edge research on law, legal institutions, and social policy. It builds upon ongoing distinguished speaker and workshop series sponsored by the Baldy Center, Law School, and affiliated UB departments. Substantive topics vary, but are likely to range across administrative regulation, crime, environment, human rights, inequality, international trade, labor, legal profession, race and religion. Students read the presenter papers, attend and participate in the presentations, and engage in a small group seminar with presenters following the public presentations. Students will discuss their own and presenter research in a multi-disciplinary environment and build professional networks with visiting speakers, UB faculty members, and fellow students. The seminar meets on Fridays from 12:15 to 3:15, with lunch available at 12:00 when there is a distinguished speaker or faculty workshop. Students enrolling for credit have the option of writing one substantial research paper or three short critical analyses of papers presented by speakers.	3	Taussig-Rubbo,Mateo; Dimick,Matthew
LAW	777LEC	Integrated Environment Mgmt	Advanced interdisciplinary course that introduces an integrated framework for environmental management that addresses biophysical, social, and economic issues affecting natural resources. The multidisciplinary approach equips the participants with the necessary approaches and techniques to communicate effectively and develop sound management policy and practice in the context of the watershed scale ranging from small watersheds to large basins.	3	Renschler,Christian S
LAW	778LEC	Cross-Border Dispute Res	When parties from different countries enter into contracts or engage in transactions, their resulting legal disputes pose challenges that are not present in the purely domestic context. Lawyers engaging in work on behalf of commercial clients need to know how to navigate these complexities, and this course will introduce the major issues and address how to approach them. Among other topics, the course will cover: the pros and cons of choosing to resolve cross-border disputes by arbitration or by litigation; issues particular to international litigation including establishing jurisdiction, service of process, and enforcement of judgments; and considerations relevant to international arbitration, including strategic decisions regarding what provisions to include in the arbitration agreement. The course will provide opportunities for practical hands-on learning, including the drafting and interpreting of arbitration clauses.	3	Lewis,Meredith

LAW	779SEM	Indigenous Law & Culture	This course examines what law means in indigenous communities throughout the Americas and the globe before and during the rise of Euro-American modernity. What do we know about the legal systems of indigenous peoples before, during and after colonialism and conquest? We will also examine the traditional federal Indian law canon, which is concerned with US governance of Indian nations, while keeping a focus on the law generated by Indian nations, not only the law about them. Finally, we will look at contemporary legal issues confronting indigenous peoples. Students wishing to receive writing credit may produce a final paper; otherwise students may take a final exam.	3	Taussig-Rubbo,Mateo

LAW	799TUT	Independent Study	An upper-class student who wishes to pursue a special research interest under the guidance of a law school faculty member may earn up to three credit hours for an independent research and writing project. Students undertaking independent research will meet periodically with the faculty member supervising the research for discussion, review, and evaluation of the research project. An adjunct faculty member cannot serve as the exclusive supervisor of an independent study. The finished written product must be comparable in scope and quality to a student note or comment in a law review or social science journal. In order to register for an independent study project the student must prepare a written research proposal approved by the supervising faculty member and obtain this faculty member's signature on the Independent Study form. This form can be found on the Records website or in the Records Office. The proposed study must be one that requires substantial investment of time and effort and results in a significant work that makes an original contribution to the understanding of law or reflects pursuit of a specialized interest of a student not covered in standard offerings in the curriculum. With faculty approval an independent study may count for seminar credit. The independent study program may not be used to earn credit for work performed as a research assistant or in an internship, an externship, or a clinic. Students are allowed to register for one independent study while in the law school. In very limited circumstances, a student may continue work on an independent research project in a later semester for up to three additional credit hours, such as where continuation of work on the paper will facilitate publication of an independent research paper or allow completion of an ambitious social science research project. Expansion of an independent study project requires a request by the supervising faculty member and approval of the Vice Dean for Student Affairs.	3	Various

LAW	816SEM	Adv Appellate Advocacy	This course will consist of participating on a team to represent UB Law at a national appellate moot court competition. As a member of a UB team you will research and write an appellate brief along with a partner on the competition problem, and prepare for and then present oral arguments at the competition that you are selected to participate in. The due dates for the brief and the dates of the competition will depend on which competition you are selected for. You will receive coaching from Professor Lucinda Finley, Director of Appellate Programs for the Advocacy Institute. Coaching sessions to prepare for oral arguments will be scheduled with each team based on the competition schedule and participant availability. All competition registration costs and travel and lodging costs will be paid by the Advocacy Institute. Registration for this course is on a permission of the instructor basis. Only second and third year J.D. students are eligible, due to competition rules. A prerequisite is prior participation in an appellate advocacy competition, whether internal to UB (e.g. Desmond), or external, OR prior participation in researching and writing an actual appellate brief or amicus brief.	3	Finley,Lucinda M
LAW	822SEM	Gender, Sexuality, & Law	Focusing on the contemporary United States, this seminar studies the legal regulation of gender and sexuality. It covers a broad range of topics: the decline and resilience of marriage as a privileged site of sex, childbearing, and parenthood; feminist law reforms relating to sexual violence and harassment; legal and political conflicts over sex work and pornography; sexuality's prominent place in debates about the relationship between law and morality; clashes between religious exercise and sexual/reproductive liberty; the legality of discrimination based on sex, gender, gender identity, and sexual orientation, and those categories' intersections with race and class.	3	Boucai,Michael
LAW	827SEM	Developments in Finance Market	This class will introduce you to emerging kinds of finance like cryptocurrencies, so-called "meme stocks," activist investors, ESG concerns, and crowdfunding, and the companies that have emerged in markets that include Uber, TikTok and Robinhood. How are these new actors regulated by our markets? How should the law adapt to these new actors? Note that Business Associations is helpful but not a prerequisite for this class.	3	Westbrook,David A.
LAW	841LEC	Int'l Legal Advocacy	This course will provide students with the opportunity to learn the fundamental aspects of international legal research, writing, and advocacy. The International Legal Advocacy course will utilize the Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition (the "Jessup Competition") as a vehicle for teaching these skills through student participation in researching and drafting a comprehensive international brief (known as a "Memorial") and rigorous oral argument. Enrollment is limited to students who are offered membership on the Jessup Competition team as a result of tryouts held during the Spring semester.	3	Hoffman,Matthew Michael

LAW	845SEM	Religion & Law	This is a First Amendment Religion course with an interesting twist " we will have as our central text a book from Aspen entitled: Law and Religion: Cases in Context. This book provides the backstory to several famous Supreme Court opinions on religion. Each week, we will read one case and its backstory for class. For example, one week we will do the entry on Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 US 205 - 1972 which describes the history of the Amish in that part of Wisconsin and the testimony of a famous former-Amish anthropologist from the University of Pennsylvania who swung the Supreme Court in favor of this small religious group. A three to four page paper (1300 words) is due in class every week on the case at hand and then we will discuss what you have written and what you think about the decision. Class attendance is obviously important, but there is no other work product, no long paper and no exam. This class is always a lot of fun.	3	Redwood,Rebecca French
LAW	849SEM	International Law Colloquium	The International Law Colloquium is a yearlong, three credit course (1.5 hours each semester), open exclusively to third year students in the international law concentration, for whom it is a required course. Students will read and discuss recent scholarship on the changing structure and function of the international legal system in the era of globalization and democratization. Each student will develop and present to the group a research project on an emerging issue in international law, culminating in a substantial research paper.	1.5	Mutua,Makau W.
LAW	864LEC	JD/MSW Colloquium	This colloquium will allow students enrolled in the JD/MSW program to meet and discuss the ethical issues involved in the practice of both law and social work, using examples from students' field/clinical work. Other topics pertinent to the dual degree program will also be discussed. This course is required each semester that the JD/MSW students enrolled in the Law School Clinical Program as a fulfillment of their MSW Field Service requirements. Other upper-class students matriculated in the JD/MSW program may enroll. This is a permission course, please see the clinic office.	1	Saran,Melinda R.

LAW	977TUT	Access to Justice Hybrid Cl	More than twenty-five million Americans are denied legal assistance each year due to lack of resources. This crisis impacts individuals and families that are part of our most vulnerable populations. In this service-learning clinic, students will interview clients at the courthouse and assist practicing attorneys in advising clients through the ECBA Volunteer Lawyer's Project (VLP) or the Volunteer Legal Services of Monroe County (VLSP). Working with Professor Bernadette Gargano, Bridget O'Connell, Esq., and VLP or VLSP, students will also perform legal research, develop legal resources for unrepresented litigants, and provide litigants with assistance in navigating legal documents and the court system. Students will staff either the Help Desk in Erie County Family Court or the Pro Se Assistance Program in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of New York (Buffalo and Rochester placements are available). As part of their fieldwork, students will participate in skills training and write a white paper (5-6 pages) on a social justice/access to justice topic of the student's choosing. Applicants must: (1) be available to work in court for at least two days per week; and (2) provide a copy of their semester class and work schedules with their application or as soon as they are available. The Family Court Help Desk is staffed from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. (Students may choose a M/W, W/F, M/F, or T/R schedule.) The Federal Court Pro Se Assistance Program is staffed from 11:30 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. on Wednesdays and Fridays in Buffalo and on Wednesdays in Rochester. Some combined court staffing are available.
